RE: The Final Steps Accord v3.2

REASSURANCE MEMORANDUM REGARDING THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE FINAL STEPS ACCORD

The United States reaffirms its enduring commitment to Israel's security and its Qualitative Military Edge (QME). The following interpretive assurances are provided with respect to The Final Steps Accord v3.2:

* * *

1. Nuclear Provisions

The Accord's Phase 1/Phase 2 structure defers final HEU disposition to a 30–60 day negotiating window. However, the Day 45 automatic default (Pathway A: in-country downblending to 19.75% LEU) is not a loophole. It is a verified, irreversible, IAEA-monitored process. If no pathway is agreed, downblending commences automatically within 7 days of deadlock certification. Iran cannot retain weapons-grade material indefinitely.

2. Ballistic Missiles

The Accord does not constrain Iran's ballistic missile program. This was a deliberate exclusion to preserve the Core Frame. However, the United States will maintain and enforce all non-nuclear sanctions related to Iran's missile program. No missile-related sanctions relief is provided under this Accord.

3. Israeli Freedom of Action

As stated in Section 56.4 of the Accord, nothing in this agreement limits Israeli military operations against Iranian or Hezbollah targets in Syrian territory. This includes, but is not limited to, strikes on weapons transfers, command nodes, and supply routes. The United States will not oppose such operations and will maintain deconfliction channels to prevent accidental engagement.

4. QME Commitment

The United States reaffirms its statutory commitment to Israel's Qualitative Military Edge. The Accord does not authorize any arms transfers to Iran or its proxies that would degrade Israel's QME. The United States will consult with Israel before any major arms sale to any Accord party that could affect regional stability.

5. Joint Technical Working Group

A US-Israel Joint Technical Working Group shall be established to monitor HEU disposition and missile-related developments. The Working Group will have access to IAEA and JCC reporting (sanitized as necessary) and will meet quarterly. Its findings are for bilateral use only and do not create Accord obligations.

6. No Legal Precedent

This Memorandum is a political commitment, not a treaty amendment. It does not create legal obligations under the Accord and is not binding on any future administration except as a statement of present policy. It shall not be incorporated into any public treaty document.
